

Participant-Led Research Session

Thank you for taking the time to contribute to our research discussion. Your active contributions will shape the direction of our study, and we appreciate your willingness to share your experiences.

This is a participant-led session, allowing you to express your thoughts openly. Feel free to take 1-2 minutes per question to provide detailed responses. Before we begin, please record the session and email it to kgaddam@iu.edu after answering all the questions. Also, ensure that your audio remains clear throughout the session. Please note that we will transcribe the audio using an online transcription tool solely for research purposes, aiming to analyze and better understand the shared experiences. Let's begin!

Please take a moment to introduce yourself by stating your full name, age, and your relationship with the loved one with dementia.

1. Share how you have been feeling in the past few weeks while taking care of your loved one with dementia. Tell us about any recent moments, whether positive or challenging, that stand out to you.
2. Describe your self-care practices in the past few weeks to manage the daily stresses of caregiving. Share your strategies that have been particularly helpful in coping with the daily stresses of caregiving.
3. Describe how caregiving has affected your overall well-being in the past few weeks, particularly regarding your relationships with family, friends, or colleagues. Have you noticed any changes or shifts in these relationships?
4. Over the past few weeks, have you, as a caregiver, noticed any changes in your decision-making process? If yes, please elaborate.
5. In the past few weeks, have any factors such as professional commitments, financial constraints, or health changes significantly influenced how you provide care? If yes, please elaborate on these factors and how they have impacted your caregiving responsibilities.
6. Reflect on your future as a caregiver. Share any hopes or concerns you have. Is there anything specific you are looking forward to or worried about in the days ahead as a caregiver?

Thank you for being an integral part of this research!
